Police play vital role in keeping FORT DAYS SAFE

Fort Ligonier Days couldn't happen without the immense help and cooperation of the Ligonier Valley Police Department. Chief Michael Matrunic, who has been involved with the event since he first became a local officer in December 1993, recently explained the role the department plays in keeping the three-day festival safe and enjoyable.

Team 211, a Westmoreland County volunteer assistance team based in Latrobe, also helps with traffic control, although they specialize in rough terrain search and rescue utilizing all-terrain vehicles. PA State Police are also involved, mainly keeping traffic flowing and pedestrians safe at the US 30-PA 711 intersection near Fort Ligonier.

"A lot of it involves traffic control," he says. This includes setting up detours, placing and installing signs including no parking signs, keeping routes open for emergency vehicles, and placing barricades where needed. Officers also place signs related to Ligonier Borough's Fort Ligonier Days ordinance – signs reminding everyone that pets and backpacks are prohibited in the festival area, along with open containers of alcohol in public places throughout the borough.

"We start Wednesday setting up with help from the borough's Public Works Department," noted Sgt. James Friscarella, pre-staging barricades for the state-approved detour route. That detour takes traffic off the Diamond area, utilizing Loyalhanna, St. Clair and Church Streets to North Market (PA 711). "For us it doesn't start Friday – it starts in August with planning and scheduling. Officers start on Wednesday before Fort Days with assigned activities."

Controlling traffic is one of their bigger tasks when the festival begins. For that, LVPD gets help from the Indiana Fire Police Association with some officers from Cambria County.

Chief Matrunic noted there will be no MPs from Johnstown assisting this year because that unit is deployed. "They were very vital in the past, so like everyone, we are experiencing manpower issues this year." The extra help with traffic control "helps our officers respond to any calls and assist with fire and EMS if needed," added the chief.

His department will have all 11 officers scheduled throughout the festival, many working 12-hour shifts. In addition to Fort Ligonier Days duties, they have to be ready to respond to any calls in the borough and the township, covering nearly 100 square miles. "Most of our officers are experienced with Fort Days and know the procedures. I welcome their knowledge and dedication."

The chief also noted the Laurel Highlands DUI Task Force will be available for the weekend as a deterrent to driving while intoxicated.

"We're using the plans we've developed over the years, but will adapt as needed," Chief Matrunic concluded. "We hope it's an event without any incidents. We want everyone to be safe."

Help us honor the most deserving in our community!

Ligonier Medal of Honor Project LLC seeks to honor two local residents who have received the nation's highest military award for heroism with a memorial befitting their service and sacrifice. Of the 50 million who have served in defense of our nation, only 3800 have received the Medal of Honor. It is rare for a town to have one recipient, much less two! Help us undo the slight that enabled the heroism of both men to be forgotten and consider making a donation to the memorial fund and scholarship fund that enables students from Ligonier Valley, Greater Latrobe and Mount Pleasant High Schools who have enlisted in the Armed Forces, Reserve, National Guard or have family members who have military service to attend college! # Crafts abound at Fort Ligonier Days

About 175 craft and food vendors will take part in Fort Ligonier Days, coming from towns near and far in Pennsylvania. You'll also find crafters from a dozen states in this year's show.

Hailing from Ohio, New York, Maryland, Massachusetts, Virginia, North Carolina, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, participants will be offering everything from dolls to dog treats, soap to candles, candy and nuts, fine jewelry, stained glass and an endless variety of food and spice items.

Mellon Park has the most vendors, about 64, followed by the Municipal Lot, with 57; Loyalhanna Lot, 24; and Fairfield Lot, 15. All the booths are listed elsewhere in this program.

Some of the featured crafters this year include:

Dana Olshewsky of She Shed Night Lights will be returning to Fort Ligonier Days for her third year at the Loyalhanna Lot near Fort Ligonier. As the name suggests, she specializes in night lights fashioned from hand-cut stained glass. "And that's all I do!"

Dana started stained glass artwork over 30 years ago in her early 20's. "I was a newlywed looking for a new and exciting hobby. At the time I would give my creations away as gifts. Before I knew it, I had three kids and not enough time for stained glass artwork. My kids are all grown up so here I am jumping back on the horse to do what I had previously loved."

Born and raised in Johnstown, Dana recalls Fort Ligonier Days was always a fall tradition for her family. "Every year we would come over with the kids to watch the parade, shop the vendors, and eat delicious food." And every year she walked through the craft lots, always drawn to the stained glass artists, thinking "I could do that someday."

She started back into stained glass artwork in 2019. Then COVID struck in 2020, shutting down many craft shows. Many of those shows had openings for 2021, and that's how She Shed Night Lights made its first appearance at Fort Ligonier Days.

"The night light idea just came to me. It's an idea you just don't see everywhere. People use them in bathrooms, kitchens, hallways, bedrooms, etc. I even offer different night light bases! Some turn on automatically at dusk or in a dark area while the other base rotates 360 degrees, just in case your outlets are 'upside-down'."

"The process starts with picking the colors and design. Next is tracing the design onto the glass with a marker. After tracing comes cutting the glass. This is the part that either makes or breaks - no pun intended - the artwork. If all goes well, I then grind the glass down and foil. Next I line all of my pieces up and solder into the design. There are smaller steps in-between and shortly after soldering, but you get the idea. This is definitely a labor of love and patience!"

Dana has had multiple repeat customers. They always “look for the red tent.” In the She Shed Night Lights booth, customers can find stained glass night lights for gifts, everyday use, holidays, etc. “My best sellers include dogs, cats, Halloween bats, and everyday panels. I have everything from flowers, Christmas, various fall choices, unicorns, different birds, several animals, fruits - you name it!”

Samantha DeStefano will be returning to Mellon Park for her third consecutive year at Fort Ligonier Days with her Rustic Smoke Candles, but she’s no stranger to Ligonier, also being a regular at Ligonier County Market from May to September.

Samantha says she’s always been a candle lover, but began to realize some of the candles she bought were not of the best quality, “so I stated making them myself and as gifts for friends and family.” Things blossomed from there and now it’s a full-time endeavor. “It all started in my apartment in Hunker, moving from the kitchen to the dining room and then to the garage.” After a move to Export, PA, Samantha’s double-bay garage has turned into her candle-making workshop.

“Our products are carefully hand-poured in small batches and made with love,” she explains. “Each candle is made of 100 percent soy wax and blended with high quality, phthalate-free fragrance oils -- guaranteed to fill your home with strong scents and cozy vibes.”

But what sets her candles apart, in addition to her bold scents, is that each candle is topped off with a signature wood chip finish -- “something we have done since our first candle was made in 2017.”

Samantha offers heat- and flame-free options that transfer perfectly into any style and space. “Farm House Morning” is her number one best seller, but also look for “Mountain Pine Magic” along with pumpkin, apple and other holiday scents at her Mellon Park booth.

Samantha says she has been attending Fort Ligonier Days “every year that I can remember” with her family, including her grandmother, Wilpen native Joann Condrick Druga. “So to be part of it as a vendor is a really cool and fun experience!” she says.

Natural Butterflies – mounted butterflies from Peru displayed in wood frames – is an unusual craft started by Wilmer and Colleen Reyes of Wexford, PA. They have been coming to Fort Ligonier Days for about two decades and can be found in the Municipal Lot again this year.

They first heard about the festival from Colleen’s late step father-in-law, Tim Brown of Ellicottville, NY, though Tim’s former roommate at SUNY/ Buffalo, Rick Schwab, longtime editor of The Ligonier Echo.

The Reyes started the butterfly craft as a college fund for their two children, the youngest of which, Isabella, is starting her second year of college. They now do only five shows a year and sell some butterfly collections on-line. But for many years they did 20 or more shows a year from their home in Delaware. Now they live much closer, near Pittsburgh.

“We only do five shows but Ligonier is still our favorite,” says Colleen, a longtime classroom teacher but now an educational consultant. “Friday is our repeat customer day,” she says. “People bring copies of their collections on their cellphones to compare what they’ve purchased in the past and to get the best selection.”

Most of the exotic butterflies are mounted between glass, so they can be seen from both sides. Many species look completely different on the undersides – often to help camouflage themselves when they land. “Our technique has remained the same but we have introduced new styles and sizes over the years,” noted Colleen. For instance, they used to mount four large Blue Morphos within a 10-by-10-inch frame, but that didn’t catch on. However, three big Blue Morphos mounted in a row is a big seller.

“We’ve now got it down to an art and a science,” said Colleen, “People like our displays and we’ve developed tools and techniques that have helped streamline the process. We know how and what to pack.”

The process begins with importing butterflies from Peru. “Our biologist sends a list of all the butterflies available – sometimes hundreds of species. We work with about 200 species.” Working with collectives sponsored by the Peruvian government, the butterflies are humanely collected from farms, professionally preserved, sent to a location to be certified – so no protected or endangered species are used – then sent to a bonded warehouse to await export. This can take months and became more difficult during the Covid outbreak.

When they reach Florida they are checked again by U.S. Fish & Wildlife, Customs, and sometimes the Department of Homeland Security before completing their journey to Wexford via FedEx. The Reyes plan to keep doing a few shows a year until they retire. Wilmer, a native of Peru, is an environmental engineer working in Pittsburgh.

It's a family feast at Fort Ligonier Days

Nobody should go hungry at Fort Ligonier Days, as the food options are almost endless, given all the food booths around the Diamond, plus additional offerings at the old Train Station near Mellon Park.

Other food items – beef jerky, candy, roasted nuts, craft soda, ice cream, freeze-dried fruit and veggies, homemade fudge, honey, toffee, coffee cake, and of course kettle corn – can be found among the craft booths throughout the festival.

Heather Kaecher, Food Committee Chair for Fort Ligonier Days 2023, is thrilled about the amazing food vendors this year.

“Long-time festival-goers will be pleased to see a variety of food that includes everything from homemade apple dumplings, cupcakes, pastries, cotton candy, Italian donuts, fresh coffee, seafood, hibachi, gyros, turkey legs, old time favorites like haluski, hot roast beef, hot sausage, and ham barbecue sandwiches, gourmet hot dogs, pulled pork/chicken, egg rolls, burgers, homemade gnocchi, stuffed hot peppers, pierogies, street tacos, jerk chicken mac ‘n cheese, famous mushroom soup, strombolis and much more!

“We are looking forward to our new vendors – Jaffre’s Restaurant and Marilyn’s Kitchen. And we’re excited to see back Fairfield Boys Club, BBG, Uzi’s Pastries, Lei’s Oriental, Courtyard Catering, Darlington Fire Department, Virginia Foods, Gosia, 3 Rivers Concessions, Sandhill Berries, Patti’s Pastries, Simply Good, Sugar Frills, Rescue Dogs, Dark Side Coffee Roasters, Hoshi, Out of the Fire, Ligonier Township VFD (Waterford), Laughing Crab, Dechellis, Antiochian Village, and our local Boy Scout Troop 372.”

“Bring your appetite, enjoy new foods, and support our vendors at this wonderful festival!” urges Heather.

Continuous music opens Fort Ligonier Days

Something new and special has been organized for opening day music on Friday, Oct. 13, on the Ligonier Diamond, Sandy Podlucky, long-time chairman of the Entertainment Committee and Erich Bucholtz, sound engineer for Fort Ligonier Days the past 30 years, recently announced.

“For the first time this year, Fort Ligonier Days will be spotlighting local talent all weekend. Friday will open with Renegade Ridge featuring Clint Erb, and The Derek Woods Band – both Ligonier groups,” explained Erich.

“Unlike the other days, Friday will consist of these two bands alternating sets, featuring non-stop music by local musicians at the Bandstand all day. That’s right folks – no breaks for band changes, just non-stop music by these two Ligonier artists,” Erich exclaimed. “That’s five continuous hours of music – this is a special thing – extremely stellar!”

The Saturday and Sunday band schedule will be more usual,” added Sandy. “Saturday kicks off with Jerry B and the Bonetones, featuring Ligonier native Eddie Kistler on the saxophone. Closing the day Saturday will be Jeff Jimerson and his band Airborne. Sunday we start with Tres Lads acoustic trio and closing the weekend’s festivities will be local country artists Saddle Up.”

Other local entertainers will be featured during the festival on the West Main Street Stage at Mack M. Darr Co. Inc. at West Main Street and College Streets. Please check this programs for specific times.

Airborne has been together since 1990 and have been performing individually throughout the tri-state area for over twenty years. Jeff surrounds himself with an extremely talented group of musicians and vocalists that help make Airborne a complete package. Jeff Jimerson is regarded by many as one of the finest vocalists Pittsburgh has ever produced. He is the primary National Anthem singer for the Pittsburgh Penguins and has also performed for the Steelers and Pirates. Appearing on several local compilation CD's, he is a regular feature for seasonal fundraising events such as WTAE-TV's Bundle Up Project, KDKA-TV's Children's Hospital Benefit, the 3WS Oldies Mass and WDVE's Toys for Tots Benefit. Jeff is also an integral part of the "B.E. Taylor Christmas Show" performing annually throughout the east coast including their sold out shows at Heinz Hall in Pittsburgh. His voice can be heard on several radio and television commercials and in 1997, appeared in the movie "Sudden Death", starring Jean-Claude Van Damme.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 15*1:00 pm - 2:30 pm*TRES LADS

Tres Lads is a powerful acoustic trio featuring three of Pittsburgh's top vocalists and guitarists. People always ask, "How do three guys with acoustic guitars make such a huge sound?" With all three members singing lead and playing guitar, you'll hear soaring vocals and three-part harmonies on covers of their own interpretations of favorites such as Journey, Queen, The Beatles, Johnny Cash, Oasis, Cheap Trick and many more.

3:00 pm - 4:30 pm*SADDLE UP

Saddle Up's become the hottest, high-energy country rock band in Pittsburgh's 7-county region. Examples of high-status gigs include performing at the Pittsburgh Steelers Training Camp, headlining county fairs and sharing the stage with country stars Craig Morgan, Brett Eldredge, Chris Cagle, Travis Tritt, and Brad Paisley. It all began with front man and lead singer Mike Garris, and his quest to find the perfect combination of professional musicians for the band. Mike's passion, dedication, and determination to find the best of the best lead him to drummer Jim Spillar, rhythm guitarist Gary Hill, lead guitarist Jay Pfeifer, bassist Bob Lunieski, and Jay Casper on keys. These 5 individuals create a unique style of country with rock-like edge. Music lovers from both country and rock n' roll genres enjoy and appreciate the sounds of Saddle Up.

MOONSHINE IN THE SUNSHINE

The spirits are moving again in Ligonier. Distilled spirits, that is. Hootch. Moonshine. But with a license.

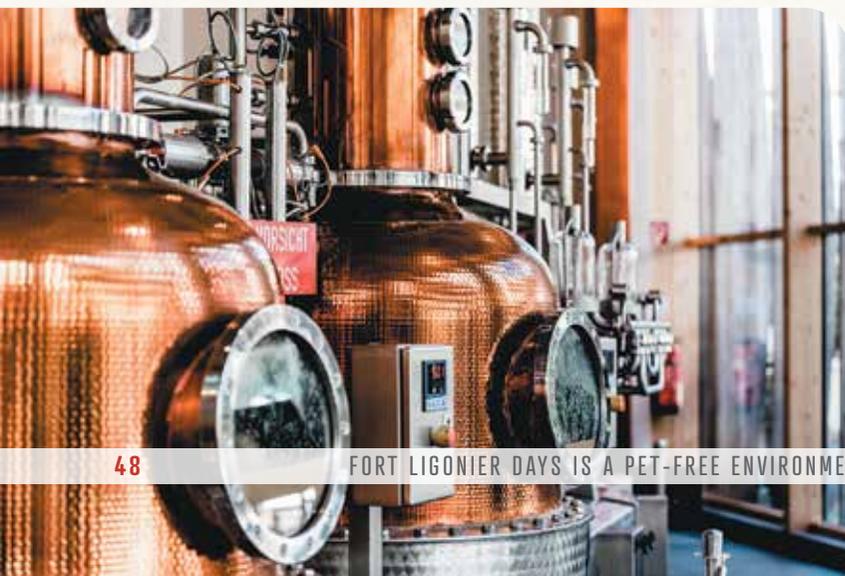

The rise of craft distilleries and breweries continues in Pennsylvania, and Fort Days will once again be providing a showcase for a variety of venturesome purveyors of beverages of the alcoholic kind. They will all be located in the expanded Holy Trinity lot, just off West Main Street, along with a lineup of Keystone state wineries.

Among the new arrivals on “Distillery Row” are Hazard’s Distillery of Mifflintown, offering Pumpkin Pie Moonshine and an interesting Salted Caramel Whiskey; Big Spring Spirits, from Bellefonte (Seven Governors Gin), and Floating Feathers Brewery, from Mill Hall, with a line of ciders and beers — one of the brews is called Whoop Bass.

Returning from last year’s gathering of the spirits will be Rusty Musket distillers from just over the mountain in Boswell; Stateside Vodka, from Philadelphia; Bethel Park’s own Country Hammer Moonshine; Hungry Run Distillery, out of Lewistown; Nomad Distilling Co., of Williamsport, and Disobedient Spirits, from Homer City.

All in all, they make up a statewide tribute to the “spirit” of Fort Ligonier Days. We’ve come a long way from the Mason jar filled with “white lightning” in days of yore to the peach-flavored vodkas and exotic rums of today. Fort Days visitors can celebrate the transition when they sample the wares of these “small batch” entrepreneurs.

THE FORT LIGONIER DAYS

GRAND PARADE

The big parade that is the festive central event of Fort Ligonier Days marches down the length of the town through a human canyon of 50 or 60 thousand people.

It's an October tradition, a Saturday tradition, a Ligonier tradition. Families and school classes build reunions around it. Porches, sidewalks, tree lawns and other perches will be packed with parade watchers from far and wide. Yet, for all its size and vast variety, a personal quality has always been one of the charms of this parade as participants and spectators trade greetings along the route. A palpable sense of pleasurable anticipation ripples through the crowd along Main Street and through Ligonier’s beloved Diamond when the parade kicks off at 11 o’clock.

There will be marching bands (lots of ‘em), floats, a rolling panoply of exotic cars, vintage military vehicles, tractors, trucks and novelty vehicles. There will be “personalities” — both animal and human, 18th century military re-enactors from the encampment at Fort Ligonier, American Civil War re-enactors, the ever-popular Shriner units (some new ones this year), and much more.

The impressive Pennsylvania State Police Ceremonial Unit will be leading off the parade. And if there’s an inevitable Steeler vibe running through the event, the massed drummers of the Pittsburgh Steeline could be part of it, as well as the presence of former Steeler quarterback Charlie Batch, representing his Best of the Batch Foundation, which serves nearly 4000 kids and their families throughout Southwestern Pennsylvania with after-school programs that help them “navigate the challenges of growing up.”

THIS JUST IN...

Mike Clark, Andrew Stockey, Kelly Sasso, Elena LaQuatra and Ava Rash from WTAE will be participating in our parade!

High School bands, some of the most renowned in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, will be a big feature this year. Among the biggest will be Morgantown (W. Va.) High School's "Mohigans;" Franklin Regional High School's Panthers, and a perennial favorite, the Butler High School Golden Tornado Band.

Other bands to watch for include the Philip Barbour High School band from Philippi, W. Va.; the Trinity Christian School band, from North Versailles, and other popular high school units from Ligonier, Derry, Latrobe, Jeannette, Hempfield, and beyond. The Seton Hill University Griffins marching band will also be performing, as well as the stirring Pittsburgh Firefighters Memorial Pipe Band.

There's more, much more, to see, as always, in little Ligonier's biggest parade, so settle in, enjoy the crowd and crane your necks for some pleasant surprises to stir your heart and tickle your funny bone.

The Roots of Fort Ligonier Days

Date to the 1950s

For more than a week in September 1958, the town of Ligonier celebrated the bicentennial of its namesake fort. Exhibitions, contests, and other exciting community events commemorated the 200th anniversary of the frontier stockade and the October 12, 1758 Battle of Fort Ligonier, a pivotal event of the French and Indian War.

The bicentennial festivities culminated with a visit by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to Fort Ligonier on September 26. "Ike" delivered a patriotic speech in front of 30,000 community residents and visitors, and then struck the final blow to forge the Century Chain that is still located on the museum grounds.

The bicentennial celebration was so successful that the following year, on October 10, 1959, Fort Ligonier hosted a commemorative event that featured the firing of antique muskets by the Loyalhanna Long Rifles of Latrobe. Twelve months later, following the model of 1958's events, a five-day festival that ran from October 12-16, 1960, inaugurated the first-ever Fort Ligonier Days.

Malcom Tweedy, then the manager of Fort Ligonier, is credited with developing the event, which included a community square dance, a "flaming foliage" and historic home tour, and a civic parade. Fort staff staged musket firings and demonstrations of apple butter making while the rhythmic clang of blacksmiths at work echoed throughout fort grounds. The British Consul-General of Cleveland attended and brought an international flair to the event as he officiated the raising of the American and British flags over the fort. The event was so successful that organizers decided to make Fort Ligonier Days an annual community event.

From the 1960 inception, Fort Ligonier Days has grown into the popular community event it is today, as the town of Ligonier welcomes up to 100,000 visitors to the fall commemoration each year. The reenactment of the October 12, 1758 battle at Fort Ligonier has remained a highlight of the festival.

In 2023, Fort Ligonier continues to commemorate the town's rich history during Fort Ligonier Days (Saturday and Sunday) with historical demonstrations of British soldiers successfully defending the fort from an attack by French forces. More than 150 reenactors are encamped throughout Fort Ligonier beginning Friday of the three-day commemoration offering visitors a fascinating depiction of life at Fort Ligonier in 1758 and before the American Revolution.

New at Fort Ligonier for 2023 is Sutlers Row. A sutler was a person who followed an army and sold provisions to the soldiers. Sutlers Row will feature artisans dressed in period clothing demonstrating and selling 18th-century-inspired wares. The focal point of Sutlers Row is Mount Vernon's Resident Baker, Justin Cherry and his Half Crown Bakehouse where visitors can enjoy fresh baked bread while watching the 18th century baking process.
